Greeley Center for Independence, Inc.

Fact Sheet

Established in 1977 as an all-volunteer patient advocacy team, Greeley Center for Independence, Inc. (GCI) as it exists today is a multifaceted non-profit organization dedicated to the health and welfare of people with a variety of disabilities.

Vision – People with disabilities leading connected, interdependent lives.

Mission – Greeley Center for Independence, Inc. serves people with disabilities by providing services tailored to meet individual needs.

Services

- Affordable, accessible housing (Hope Apartments, Camelot Apartments)
- Home health care
- Supported Living Program for adults with brain injury (Louie/Hertzke Houses @ Stephens Farm)
- Day Program (Homestead House @ Stephens Farm)
- Physical/Occupational Therapy clinic (Hope Therapy Center)
- Warm Water Pool and Wellness Gym (Hope Pool and Wellness Gym)

Our founder, Hope Cassidy, realized early on that anyone with a disability who wishes to participate in the life of the community needs affordable, accessible housing. With the support of the board of directors GCI leveraged a variety of community partnerships, and today provides 65 apartments at three locations: Camelot Apartments, Hope Apartments and Stephens Farm.

Supportive services are the key to people with disabilities being successful in community living arrangements. GCI provides customized supportive services in each of its three residential complexes. As a licensed home health agency, GCI provides home health care to residents of Camelot and Hope Apartments. Stephens Farm residents are provided with 24 hour services under the Supportive Living model of the Brain Injury waiver.

While all our services are located in Greeley, Colorado, the individualized nature of our supports draws people from all over Colorado, as well as from other states.
